Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

6. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

7. The claimed invention as in Claim No. 1 is directed to non-statutory subject matter. The claim limitations appear to be non-functional descriptive material, per se. If Applicant is attempting to claim a data structure (functional descriptive material), Applicant must establish how/why what is claimed meets the IEEE definition of a data structure, specifically a physical or logical relationship among data elements, designed to support specific data manipulation functions. Even if it is functional descriptive material, the claimed system lacks recitation the hardware necessary to realize any underlying functionality of the claimed elements.
